

June 6, 2011

Mr. Ron Leatherman:

As far as I know, there is only one company that can do what you do. At the end of any project, you have two options when it comes to repairing damaged installations. You can either remove and replace the material, which always takes too long and typically costs too much. Or we can call you to come in and save the day by fixing the damaged materials in place while saving both time and money.

There have been countless times where if it weren't for Ron, we would have spent an exorbitant amount of money and would have not been able to turn the building or space over to the owner in time.

Some of the more notable items of correction are as follows:

- Repaired and matched scratches in solid black countertops.
- Repaired and matched section of terrazzo flooring that had been damaged.
- Repaired and matched brushed aluminum door frames.
- Repaired and matched historical relief artwork at a roman columns.

When it comes to wood, countertops, metal, plastics or any other material, as far as I know, there is nothing that you can't fix.

Regards,

Jason Choyce